

TRANSCRIPT PREPARED BY THE CLERK OF THE LEGISLATURE
Transcriber's Office
FLOOR DEBATE

February 25, 2004 LB 26, 1049

house. We have regulatees, and those regulatees determining the policy for the state of Nebraska, the standards that are set for environmental regulations, and selecting the person who becomes the director overseeing those policies of the Environmental Quality Council. I've introduced two bills, one, LB 26, that would change, at least a little bit, that makeup to have some semblance of balance on it,...

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time.

SENATOR PREISTER: ...and one other bill. Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Preister. Senator Louden, on your motion to reconsider.

SENATOR LOUDEN: Thank you, Mr. President and members of the body. I thought I would address some of the questions that Senator Bourne and Senator Brown has raised, when they talk about rich people working at Wal-Mart or someplace and getting on...getting these unemployment benefits. First of all, some of these places don't pay these benefits. So when you're a greeter at Wal-Mart's, I'm not that familiar with it, but I question, do you receive full benefits? Do you receive health and unemployment benefits and that sort of thing? So first of all, if the benefits aren't paid in, you won't be eligible for it if you're just working part-time. These are for people that are working full-time. Another thing that I might point out to you, that if you have a railroad retirement, you can go ahead and draw unemployment insurance and it doesn't count against it. Social Security is the only one that...right now, that counts against your unemployment insurance. It happens to be just this one area that...where it counts against you. So whether you're on railroad retirement or whether you have some type of retirement funding that was put in from somebody besides somebody that you was employed with, if it's some investments you made or something like that, you can still draw your unemployment. This is something that...where there isn't any fairness there. And this is an amendment to Senator Cunningham's bill. It will treat those people that are still trying to be independent and make a living for the last few years of their work life, to be able to be eligible for